Hi, we're Stint.

Stint is a revolutionary platform that enables students to earn flexibly around their studies, so they can balance work with university life.

And we don't stop there. We're transforming the entire hospitality industry too. We connect businesses to our flexible student workforce so they can perfectly align their labour to demand.

OUR STORY

In 2017, our founders Sam and Sol were studying at UCL when it became clear that earning money to support university life was an impossible challenge for most students. Balancing lectures, exams, coursework, societies and socials with ever-rising rents, cost of living and tuition fees felt impossible. The system was broken.

Something needed to change.

After approaching 1,000+ businesses about staffing, an idea sparked.

Sam and Sol realised the way that the hospitality industry traditionally staff was flawed and students were uniquely placed to solve this problem.

So in 2018, Stint was born.

What began as a small group of students helping people find short shifts over WhatsApp, snowballed into a groundbreaking app that has now connected over 250,000 people to hundreds of top brands in hospitality for flexible part-time work.

Today, our mission remains the same, but with one difference:

We're not only empowering students to earn money flexibly around university, we're revolutionising the entire hospitality industry...

So how does Stint work?

Let's start
with students...

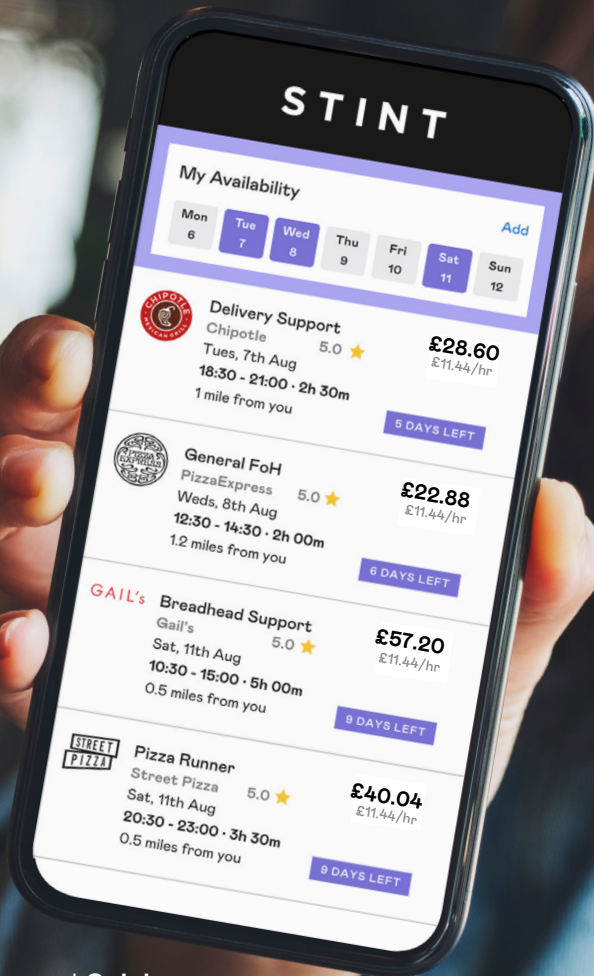

Welcome to the new part-time job.

Our app connects students to top brands in hospitality for flexible part-time work to fit their university life. We enable them to earn cash between classes, evenings and weekends
- they call the shots.

STINT

Eat. Sleep.

Repeat.

The average Stint is around 2-4 hours long and over busy peaks in the day, with Stinters earning up to £15 an hour. It's what makes it perfect for students with uni schedules.

Using Stint is simple:

- 1 Students with great energy, attitude and enthusiasm are already set for Stint.
- 2 After downloading our app and completing a Right to Work check, they enter their preferences and experience. A quick selfie video shows us why they'd ace Stint, and the best are invited to a Stint Team at a business that matches.
- 3 The rest is history. They get to work the Stints that work for them - simply turn up on time with the correct uniform, a great attitude and complete their weekly Stint allocation.

Our Stinters unlock a world of perks along the way: next day pay, increasing rates, free meals, exclusive Stint discounts, plus much more.

How does Stint work?

Moving onto hospitality...

We are pioneering the short shift.

Our technology combined with our flexible student workforce is helping businesses match labour
to demand more accurately than ever before.

STINT

The problem?

Typical busy periods are usually 2-3 hours long.

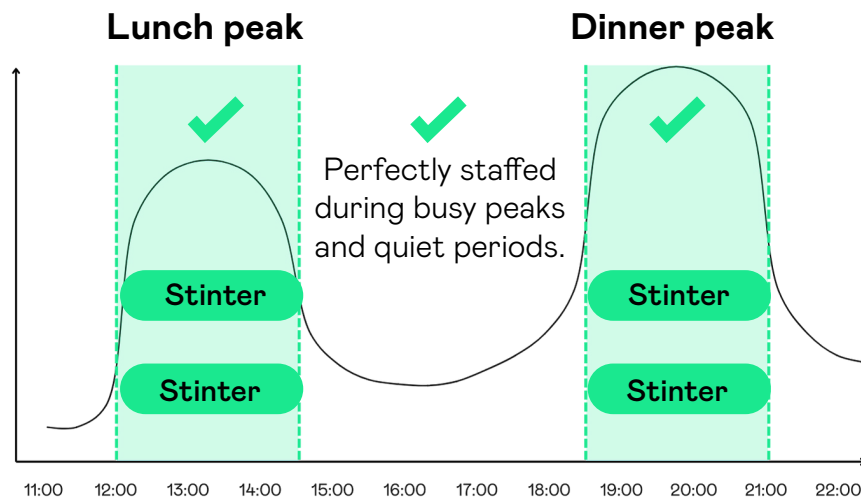

These short peaks aren't a sufficient shift length for most members of staff, resulting in overstaffing and understaffing throughout the day, which impacts customer service.

The solution:

Stint Teams work just the hours necessary.

Our fully customisable Stint Teams consist of students who are perfectly suited for hospitality work; they live and attend uni in city centres nearby, and have bursts of availability in between their studies. They are enthusiastic, energetic, and have a great attitude.

Students work the available short Stints that suit their schedules, and can access tailored training content including videos, top tips, and health and safety info. They can also complete in-app qualifications.

Stinters are rated after every Stint, so only the reliable, top performing people return - there's no need for businesses to keep training new people.

Stint Teams replace the part of workforces that constantly churn, saving time, money, and allowing businesses to focus on customer service, revenue and supporting their core team.
